GERMAN STRIKE INCREASES

HARDING DECLINES TO TAKE ACTION ON INVASION OF RUHR DISTRICT

Threatened Storm in Senate Held Up Until Report on Boyden Activities

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
For International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—Between opposing lines of senatorial fire—directed on the one hand by those who believe the United States has not done enough, and on the other by those who believe too much has been done to involve this government in Europe's quarrels, there was every indication today that President Harding and Secretary of State Hughes are going to continue to adhere strictly to their announced policy of keeping "hands off"

"The United States is maintaining an attitude of 'waiting to be helpful.'" This was the explanation of the administration policy, reiterated today both by the White House and at the state department. The impression was given that no amount of senatorial sharpshooting is likely to cause a deviation from this policy.

Senator William E. Borah's caustic criticism of France's invasion of Germany, and his assertion that the United States is "honor bound" to protest against "this French imperialism" was met in administration quarters today with the reply that the American government had gone just as far in this direction as it consistently could.

Awaits Full Report

The threatneed storm in the senate over the maintenance of Colonel Boyden and his associates in Paris is held in abeyance until Secretary of State Hughes makes his "full report" to the foreign relations committee of the senate.

Senator Borah said today he did not consider it very important at this time whether Boyden came home or stayed in Paris.

"The reparations commission is out of commission," said Borah.

"The military occupation of Germany by France has rendered reparations and financial clauses of the Versailles treaty worthless for all present, or so far as one can see, all future purposes.

Powerless to Help

"Mr. Boyden and his assistants might just as well come home. But in my opinion they are powerless to render any service, good or bad, by remaining."

Senator Borah has not abandoned his plan to have this government inaugurate steps toward an international economic conference, although for the time being it is held in abeyance.

If there be an early change in American policy, it will develop shortly after Colonel George Harvey's return to his post at London, it was believed here today. Colonel Harvey had ten days of almost continuous conferences with President Harding and Secretary Hughes and is returning to London in a position to talk about British-American co-operation to relieve the situation, if that policy is found to be desirable in the light of changing developments.

Jealous Husband Bites Off Tip of Wife's Nose

MANSFIELD, Ohio, Jan. 23.—An operation in plastic surgery was performed on Mrs. Della Jukich today to replace the tip of her nose which was entirely bitten off.

It is understood Mrs. Jukich and her husband had an altercation because some one had given her a box of chocolate candy at the factory where she worked. The husband is said to have forbidden his wife to return to work. She insisted on going back.

Jukich is said to have bitten her nose off to keep her from returning.

Federal Marriage Law Proposed by Capper

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23. — A new national marriage and divorce law, with an enacting resolution proposing a constitutional amendment, was introduced in the senate today by Arthur Capper, Republican of Kansas.

The bill seeks to make divorces more difficult and to prevent what Capper termed "hasty and foolish marriages."

Fight on Annexation Result Causes Delay In Ballot on Bonds

THE next grammar school bond election cannot be called by the local board of education until the district's boundaries are definitely fixed.

This information was obtained by Richardson D. White, superintendent of schools, yesterday from Attorney Jerry Powell, deputy County Counsel, and will be explained tonight at the meeting of the grammar school board of education.

The validity of Glendale's recent annexation, which included a large district west of the Los Angeles river, is now being tested in the courts. City Attorney Hartley Shaw is of the opinion that it should be setteld in about three weeks.

According to Mr. White, this uncertainty is likely to cause a few weeks' delay.

Meanwhile, the county surveyor's office has been instructed by the county board of supervisors to furnish a definite description of the boundary lines of the local grammar school district.

Irish Guerillas Being Rounded Up by Troops

DUBLIN, Jan. 23.—A great round-up of republican irregulars was begun by the Free Staters today all the way across southwestern Ireland, from county Cork to Galway.

Prisoners and munitions were captured at Tipperary, Newport, Castle Connell, Limerick and North Galway.

Thomas O'Donnell, a member of the dail eireann, was captured by irregulars but escaped.

Uncle John Says:

Mary is quite a philosopher. She was sittin' in deep thought the other day and I knew somethin' was comin'. She looked up and says, "John, when any person that lives in Glendale goes out of town to buy anything they could get here it's just because they don't stop to think. It ain't that they don't want to see Glendale keep forgin' ahead, it's because they don't take it personal, they don't stop to think they can help. If everyone was like us wouldn't this town boom? We know it's for the good of the city and for ourselves, too, to keep our money here where it goes from one storekeeper to another and maybe comes back to us or is used for some improvement that helps to make our property worth more."

NATIONAL OFFICIAL FOR BOY SCOUTS SPEAKER HERE

Big Brother Movement Is Subject of Address to Members of Elks

A talk was given at the Elks' club last night by D. W. Pollard, national field representative of the Boy Scouts of America, who is now in Glendale conducting a campaign of education along Scouting lines.

"The sign 'Men Wanted' is up in every city, town or hamlet in the world," he emphatically declared." We need real men,—men of character and personality who are willing to give time in the training of America's greatest asset,—her boys."

Mr. Pollard told of the work that is being done through the "Big Brother Movement," which the Elks all over the country are now sponsoring and have been actively engaged in during the past fifteen years. He cited incidents when he was in Chicago where wonderful results had been attained through the Big Brother contact of the man and the boy. He likened the Boy Scout troop to the Big Brother Movement.

Gang Instinct

The Boy Scout program, according to Mr. Pollard, is so constituted that it not only helps the individual boy but it takes advantage of the gang instinct and through the patrol and troop organization enables the Scoutmaster to be a big brother to not only one but many boys."

"Thirty-one per cent of the young men in San Quentin are under 21 years of age," remarked Mr. Pollard. "We have eight million boys of Scout age waiting for the splendid program of the Scouting 'bug.' The ideals of the movement can be instilled into the boy providing we can procure the adult leadership."

Mr. Pollard cited instances of

ENDORSES RAKER BILL FOR ROADS

Establishment of National Highway System Urged By Glendale Solon

Special to The Evening News

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 23.—As chairman of the military affairs committee of the lower house, Assemblyman Frank C. Weller of Glendale has presented the California legislature with a joint resolution indorsing the Raker bill now before congress which seeks the establishment of a Pacific coast national highway system.

Congressman John E. Raker asks that an appropriation of $250,000 be made for the examination, survey and report to the war department as the preliminary to the improvement, construction and maintenance of coast, valley and mountain motor truck routes along the Pacific coast, with laterals to the important harbors.

This system is to meet the transportation requirements of heavy commerce in time of peace and of heavy ordnance in time of war, and to serve as post roads with proper and sufficient laterals in the states of California, Oregon and Washington. Landing fields for airplanes every twenty-five miles along the three main truck highways also are sought.

Will Aid Development

In Assemblyman Weller's resolution he says: "This bill is of vital interest to the state of California, and, if adopted, will assist in the agricultural and commercial development of this state and the entire Pacific coast in times of peace. The system of highways will be absolutely necessary to a proper defense of the Pacific coast in times of war."

It is pointed out that this measure costs the state of California nothing, but, in return, opens the way to a great development of its highway system. Similar action to that proposed by Mr. Weller is expected in the states of Oregon and Washington.

The accident, telephone reports said, happened three miles north of Santa Barbara. Safady was driving. Captain Roberds is reported to be suffering from a fractured hip, broken leg and internal injuries, which may prove fatal. Safady's condition was declared critical, indicating he suffered a basal fracture of the skull and other injuries.

Bandits Take $50,000 From Bank Messenger

NEW YORK, Jan. 23. — Two automobile bandits held up messengers of the Municipal bank of East New York and robbed them of $50,000 being transferred from the Pitkin avenue bank, Brooklyn, to a branch of the Municipal bank, Brooklyn today. Two automobiles were used by the bandits, who escaped.

Three armed guards in the treasure car, taken by surprise, were unable to make any resistance.

SEEK CHANGE IN CLEARING HOURS

Credit Assn. Committee Will Ask Banks to Clear Checks at Noon

Revival of the committee that was appointed some time ago to confer with local bankers on the plan to clear checks at noon each day instead of at 9 o'clock in the morning was decided upon at the weekly meeting of the Glendale Credit association yesterday, and a conference will be held this week to go into the question in all of its aspects.

Under the present system, checks are cleared through the Glendale banks each morning, and this custom, according to Frank H. Pilling, secretary of the Glendale Credit association, means that any bad checks cannot be immediately returned to the merchants who have accepted them, thus allowing the persons who issued such checks considerable leeway before their offense has been discovered.

The clearing of each day's checks at noon, according to Mr. Pilling, would permit the victims to take action against the offenders in a much shorter time than is now possible, and would, it is believed, result in materially cutting down the losses suffered by Glendale merchants from this source.

Trade Conditions Good

Harry Kent is chairman of the committee appointed by the association.

Reports submitted informally by members of the association indicate that business conditions here are in an extremely healthy shape, with prospects for increased commercial activity much brighter than they have been for some time.

The steady influx of new residents to Glendale is having a marked influence on local business, it was stated, and the volume of transactions in every line of business is showing a most encouraging growth.

The usual routine business of the association was transacted at the meeting.

Involve Two More in 'Hooded Mob' Inquiry

BASTROP, La., Jan. 23.—The circumstantial evidence the state has thrown around the "black terrorists" of Morehouse parish today enmeshed two more men as alleged members of the hooded mob which brutally executed Watt Daniel and Thomas F. Richards, last August. They were Jasper N. "Jap" Jones and "Big Jim" Harper, both employes of the Southern Carbon company.

Jones and Harper were involved by circumstantial evidence. Both were seen alighting from an automobile at their homes in Bonita at 3 o'clock on the morning after the murders, though both testified at the open hearing they were home asleep at that hour. The testimony was given by R. C. Carter, night watchman at the carbon plant.

DISCUSS PLANS TO SEND ELKS BAND ON BIG TOUR

Sum of $10,000 Would Be Needed for Expenses of Journey, Estimate

Whether the Glendale Elks' lodge will send its band to the grand lodge next July at Atlanta, Ga., and then on a short tour of larger cities en route home, is being given serious consideration by lodge officers and members. The project was discussed at length at the regular lodge meeting last night, but final decision was deferred until the next lodge meeting.

In the discussion last night emphasis was placed on the wide recognition the band would bring to the lodge and to Glendale, but on the other hand was the approximate cost of such a trip, given as $10,000.

How to raise this amount and the advisability of putting it to such use is now being considered by the lodge and the matter is to be thoroughly investigated before final action is taken.

Twelve New Members

There were 200 members at the meeting last night, with Exalted Ruler Arthur H. Dibbern presiding. During the meeting twelve new members were voted into the lodge and they will be initiated next Monday night.

Following the meeting an entertainment program was given by a group of Polish artists introduced to the club by John Roman, house manager.

The entertainment feature for next Monday night will be an illustrated letcure by John Fisher Anderson of Pasadena, "Seeing Hawaii on American Pluck." Mr. Anderson is widely known for his trip around the world on $8 and the 3000 feet of moving pictures he will show Monday night are some he took on his trip.

HUGE EXTENSION OF RUHR PROTEST IN LAST 24 HOURS, REPORTS SHOW

France Willing to Grant Two Year Indemnity If Paid Large Amount

BULLETIN

ESSEN, Jan. 23.—The French military authorities formally announced tonight that "important military preparations and troop movements are in progress in the interior of Germany."

A mob surrounded the Essen postoffice but was dispersed when the French unlimbered a machine gun. No shots were fired. The French deny the arrival of French reinforcements but say the troops are being re-distributed.

BULLETIN

ESSEN, Jan. 23. — German strikers in the Ruhr and Rhineland were estimated this evening at more than 160,000.

BULLETIN

PARIS, Jan. 23. — France is willing to grant a two year indemnity moratorium to Germany on condition the Germans pay $600,000,000 in foreign currency and goods in the meantime and pledge the nation's wealth to the allies, it was revealed this afternoon through official announcement of the new French reparations plan.

By S. D. WEYER
For International News Service

ESSEN, Jan. 23.—There has been a big extension of the Ruhr coal strike within the past twenty-four hours and it was claimed by the Germans this afternoon that about 100,000 men were idle. Coal production from the mines owned by Hugo Stinnes and August Thyssen was paralyzed by the walkout of miners. The French have not yet attempted to requisition mine labor and there have been no disorders.

The French are taking steps to isolate the occupied areas from the rest of Germany. A "frontier" guard is being established.

French officials are preceeding cautiously, but claim to have the situation completely in hand.

At points where clashes were threatened, French troops were withdrawn, additional French, Belgian and Italian engineers are arriving and are studying the operation of German mining machinery so that they can soon assume full charge of the collieries.

Trials Under Way

There are reports in German circles that both the French and Belgians are bringing up reinforcements of troops. Berlin is counselling the Germans in the Rhineland to stand firm in their passive resistance, declaring that any weakness shown now would be encouragement for the French.

It is understood that the trials of the Ruhr coal mine directors, arrested by the French on Saturday, are now under way before a military tribunal at Mayence, former headquarters of the French army of occupation. They are charged with disobedience.

Local Organization Seeks To Save Historic 'La Ramada'

PLANS TO PRESERVE ROMANTIC PLACE AS COMMUNITY CENTER

Meeting Will Be Held on Wednesday Night to Further Action for Landmark

By H. THOMPSON RICH
Of The Evening News Staff

SUNDAY afternoon, in rambling, historic "La Ramada," on North Brand boulevard, between Stocker and Randolph streets, an important meeting of educators, civic workers and artists was held, for the purpose of forming an organization to preserve this outstanding landmark as a community art center.

For a century and a half this fine old hacienda has withstood the ravages of war, weather and fortune. Built by Don Juan Mario Verdugo, on a land grant from a Spanish king, at a time when the "Minute Men" were rallying to Washington and the "Red Coats" were swarming from England under Cornwallis, La Ramada's great doors had long swung wide with Castilian hospitality, before the United States emerged from their second clash with the British as a nation.

Back east, landmarks like this are preserved. The same spirit of pride in antiquity should prevail in the west. And yet, La Ramada and its acreage will be cut up and sold piecemeal, unless immediate action is taken.

It is to prevent such a shameful finale to the glorious romance that has woven itself around the old estate, that Sunday's meeting was called. Fancy the most significant stopping-point on El Camino Real, between San Gabriel and San Fernando missions, coming under the subdivider's hammer!

Plan for Action

That the people of Glendale are in favor of retaining intact this historic reminder of the days of the Padres, was definitely evinced when, at that meeting on Sunday afternoon, with the great main chamber packed to capacity, a board was elected and a committee appointed, to crystallize the existing sentiment into action.

The whole movement dates from December 14, of last year, when H. C. Swartz, the prominent sculptor who is leasing La Ramada, gave a talk before the Central avenue Parent-Teacher association. In this talk Mr. Swartz brought out strongly the need for a community art center in Glendale, and he called attention to the fact that La Ramada, which would make an ideal location for such a center, was soon to be cut up and parceled out into building lots.

Chosen Chairman

It was at this meeting that Mrs. D. F. Reichard, president of the Central avenue Parent-Teacher association, had the pleasure of meeting Mrs. Roy A. Ballagh. Learning of Mrs. Ballagh's interest in art, Mrs. Reichard appointed her art chairman of the association and delegated her to get in touch with Mr. Swartz and arrange for a meeting to start the movement.

The result was Sunday afternoon's gathering of over fifty interested Glendale men and women. And the result of that gathering, presided over by Mr. Moses of the Southern California Art Club, was that Mrs. Roy A. Ballagh was elected president of the temporary board; H. C. Swartz, vice president; Mrs. L. B. Beach, secretary, and Mrs. D. F. Reichard, treasurer.

The committee, which was appointed to formulate a constitution and by-laws for submission, comprises Walter L. Cheever, L. T. Rowley and D. F. Reichard.

The next meeting was called for 8 o'clock Wednesday night, January 24, at the home of Mrs. Ballagh, 202 West Doran street. At this meeting, in addition to consideration of the constitution and by-laws to be submitted by the above named committee, the subject of a name for the organization will be discussed.

"Glendale's support of this movement and acquisition of La Ramada as a community art center will be considered by those who follow us as one of the biggest and most far-visioned things this ciyt ever did," states Mrs. Reichard, "and they will look upon the work with thankful pride. Just as Mr. Chobe's peacock and other float creations advertise us far and wide, so would such a center herald Glendale before the world.

Personal Advantages

"And consider the personal advantages, to ourselves and to our children. The time is past when we can do without art, individually, just as it is past when we can do without it civically and nationally. Art is a natural reflex of life. Life is with us, and therefore, art must be. And we are not going to enjoy the fullness of life unless we recognize and foster it.

"The young folks particularly, in whom we are placing the hope of the next generation," continued Mrs. Reichard, "need the stimulus of art. They not only need it, they want it. Recently, when John W. Cotton gave an exhibition of his etchings at the Central avenue school, the children were so deeply interested that scores of them gave up their recesses to look at them.

Give Finer Things

"And they asked intelligent questions. Why not give our children the finer things, when they want them so badly? And why deprive ourselves of an opportunity to have something in Glendale not only unique but of a high social as well as cultural value?"

Among the well known artists back of the movement are John W. Cotton, H. C. Swartz and Ralph Pearson, of Glendale; Mr. Stendahl, of the Stendahl galleries, and Jack Smith, of Los Angeles; and Mr. Moses, of Eagle Rock.

As immediate action in this matter is necessary, if La Ramada is to be preserved intact for Glendale, all those interested and willing to co-operate are invited to be present at the meeting on Wednesday night.

Lonely Person, Deaf, Wants Friends; Will You Hear This Plea?

A story of a lonely heart made more lonely by extreme deafness has come to The Glendale Evening News in a note from a deaf woman of Glendale, who asks help in finding some friends in Glendale.

Believing that there are in Glendale people who will respond to this human plea The Evening News is printing the note:

"Do you know or can you find out if there is any organization in Glendale composed of deaf people who meet for recreation, a little social time and to practice lip reading?

"I have been living in Verdugo Canyon seven months and have no opportunity to meet or know anyone. I attend one of Glendale's largest churches, and no one ever speaks to me.

"I have friends in a lip reading school in Los Angeles, and as I am very deaf I enjoyed these people and wish I might find some in Glendale.

"Please do not use my name in the paper, but help me if you can, for I am lonely and need it."

SEEKS CHANGE IN LIVESTOCK LAW IN EAGLE ROCK

Urges Passage of Ordinance To Restrain Cows to Definite Zones

If the Board of Trustees of Eagle Rock does not pass an ordinance prohibiting some people from keeping their cow at least 100 feet from some other people's place of residence in Eagle Rock, it will not be the fault of Mrs. M. J. Kirske of Fairmont avenue, who appeared before the trustees last night again to urge the passage of such an ordinance.

Mrs. Kirske has placed the matter before the board on two occasions previously. The first and second times she was supported by a numerously signed petition and last night by the testimony of another neighbor, Mrs. Lee, and what was purported to be a copy of the Palo Alto ordinance covering the subject.

In advancing the interest of her neighbor, Mrs. Lee suggested that the city dads might create zoning districts and allow cows and horses to be kept in certain sections of the city. Other districts to be known as the industrial or agricultural zones would be allowed to keep horses, cows and goats.

Would Compare Laws

In presenting the Palo Alto ordinance for the trustees' consideration, Mrs. Kirske asked that the trustees have the Eagle Rock ordinance read first, that a comparison could be made. She said she had tried vainly to see a copy of the Eagle Rock ordinance, but had been unable to find a copy. In reply to her request the mayor stated the ordinance was at City Attorney McNitt's office, and it would be impossible to read it at this time. Attorney McNitt offered to read it over the phone to the petitioner, but the latter declined with thanks, and proceeded to read the one she had brought with her. She stated she had lived for years in Palo Alto and it was a model city in every respect. She thought the officials of Eagle Rock should strive to do as well by its citizens.

Mayor Osborne said the city clerk had secured copies of ordinances from numerous suburban cities the size of Eagle Rock for comparison; also the trustees were familiar with the Palo Alto ordinance. In his opinion, it was much too drastic for Eagle Rock, as the requirements would prohibit people in ordinary circumstances from keeping a cow or horse.

Opposed to Cows

Mrs. Kirske said she had phoned indiscriminately to 100 citizens of Eagle Rock, asking if they would like to have a cow stabled within fifty feet of their residence. Eighty-seven, according to Mrs. Kirske, were unalterably opposed, four were in favor and six said they would let her know later. She said this was an indication that Eagle Rock citizens were in opposition to the subject under consideration. She said the total cow population of the city was seventy-eight, but if everyone persisted in keeping a cow there would be 7000 in the city.

The subject was discussed for some time, and finally, on motion, tabled. A resolution was then introduced and passed that the city clerk and the city attorney go over the present ordinance carefully as well as copies of those of other cities of a like population, and suggest any remedies that might be apparent in reference to sanitary conditions.

New Empire Rising on Ashes Of Present System, Is Speaker's Belief

J. C. Watt of Toronto, Canada, will give a free lecture at the Central school auditorium, Eagle Rock, tonight at 7:45 o'clock, his subject being the "New World Begun."

MANY FRIENDS OFFER TRIBUTE TO R. H. WELLS, PIONEER HERE

Hold Funeral Services for Santa Fe Man, Prominent In Building Up Railroad

ALL that was earthly of Richard Harter Wells, pioneer Californian, Glendalian and Santa Fe railroad builder, was laid to rest at 11 o'clock this morning, in Forest Lawn, after a beautiful service at the Little Church of the Flowers, conducted by Rev. Philip K. Kemp, rector of St. Mark's Episcopal church, Glendale; Rev. Milton S. Runkel, of the Holy Trinity church, Alhambra, and Rev. G. H. Cornell, retired, of Pasadena.

The pallbearers were George B. Meserole, Gene Harrison, R. B. Ball, William Ergmann, V. F. Levit, A. C. Buck, George L. Davenport, George B. Cash, and the flower-bearers were E. R. Collins, Vernon Snively and C. L. Wells, a nephew.

The pallbearers were Santa Fe fellow-employes and personal friends of many years' standing, with the exception of Mr. Meserole, who is an old-time Colorado friend of the deceased.

Richard Harter Wells, picturesque type of westerner now rapidly passing, lived with his wife, Mrs. Otterlie U. Wells, at 404 West Broadway, where for sixteen years they had made their home. When the Wells family first built at that location, Glendale was a wild, wooded country known to sportsmen as a good quail-hunting ground.

Pioneer Employe

Mr. Wells was one of the best known and admired pioneer employes of the Santa Fe railroad system, and before his last lingering illness of several months' duration, he had been steadily employed by this system since March 27, 1897, his first center of activities after this date being Williams, Ariz.

Working his way rapidly to the post of chief architect, Mr. Wells held this position until last September, when ill health forced him to retire. During this long term of twenty-five continuous years of service, which was at the time of California's and the Santa Fe system's greatest growth period, he left many monuments of his skill as an architect and builder. Numerous beautiful mission type stations and other railroad structures along the lines of the system are the works of his drafting board, compass and T-rule.

Born in Canada

Mr. Wells was born in Toronto, Canada, December 27, 1847, and obtained his early education at a private school at Guelph, Ontario.

In his early manhood he entered the postal service of the Grand Trunk railway system and rose after a period of years to the position of chief clerk. At the age of 22 he resigned this position and entered the offices of Langley & Burke, architects.

The sheep-raising industry later appealed to him; and, lured to Colorado by a love of the open, in 1872, he engaged extensively in this industry. But on July 4, 1875, his entire sheep interests were wiped out in a blizzard of the titanic type that periodically sweep over the level reaches of Solorado. With his fortune buried, frozen and dead, under great white mounds of silent snow, Mr. Wells turned his feet sadly away and hit the Santa Fe trail, where he obtained work as an architect.

Loses His Fortune

Three and a half years later, determining once more to venture into business for himself, he opened his own architect office, in Topeka, Kansas. But a grim fate seemed determined that he should lend the services of his life to others, for in the panic of 1893 his business and his fortune were swept away as suddenly and as silently as the blizzard of 1875 had buried that earlier fortune.

For four years he struggled to combat that fate; but, finally, on that day in March, 1897, he returned to the Santa Fe, took up the architectural work of that great system, and never more ventured into a private enterprise.

Loved Out of Doors

The deceased was a quiet man, whose joy was chiefly in the great out-of-doors he loved so. Fishing, in particular, was his hobby, and he had been a member of the Southern California Rod and Reel club almost from the time of its organization.

Many a lonely trout stream winding off through the Sierra foothills, down from the towering mountains, and many a deep, clear lake far up amid those same mountains, remembers the days Richard Harter Wells went, over little-known trails and where trails ended and untrodden nature began.

In Church Work

Mr. Wells was also an ardent church worker, being a deacon in the Glendale Episcopal church.

He is survived by his widow and four children, Clarence F. Wells, Los Angeles; Charles U. Wells, Glendale; Mrs. J. L. Flint, wife of a prominent Los Angeles-Glendale physician, and Mrs. Harriet Wells Hopkins, and these brothers: A. G. Wells, vice president of the Santa Fe, Chicago; William Wells, a prominent broker in Chicago; R. E. Wells of the taxicab company of Owens Brothers & Wells, Los Angeles, and John Wells, another Santa Fe official.

NATIONAL OFFICIAL FOR BOY SCOUTS SPEAKER HERE

the results secured through Scouting especially from the underprivileged boys sponsored by the Elks in California cities. In Santa Barbara forty boys, one-third of whom were under the supervision of the juvenile court and the rest, boys with little or no home life, were adopted by the Elks and a Scout troop was organized. In less than a year these boys had won the prize for all-around Scout advancement.

Takes First Place

One of the members, who before joining the Scouts was considered one of the toughest boys in town, took the first place in a point contest in which Scouts from all parts of the city participated.

A "chip in" club was started in this same troop and a wooden leg was purchased for a newsboy. Another Scout in this troop volunteered himself for a serious skin grafting operation which nearly cost him his life. When asked why he had volunteered he bravely answered back that he was a Boy Scout and that was his "good turn."

In Dead Earnest

"Boys play 'follow the leader' in dead earnest," said Mr. Pollard. "It is highly important that the right leader be procured if the boy is to develop into a useful citizen. Our jails are filled with young men who never should be there. Why? Because they got started on the wrong track and followed the wrong leader."

In his closing remarks, Mr. Pollard urged the local Elks to get solidly behind the forward movement which is now under way to make the Verdugo Hills district one of the strongest Scout centers in the west.

PROPERTY OWNERS SEEK DRAINAGE FACILITIES

Danger From Flood Water Is Shown in Petition to City Trustees

A communication to the Board of Trustees of Eagle Rock City Monday night from ten property owners in the Linden Way section, asked that the city at once take action to afford proper drainage facilities for a tract in that section. The petitioners cited the fact that much damage to property would result by flood waters if something was not done.

The question had been before the board at divers times, resulting in being held over from the last meeting. Whether or not it would be better to put in a shallow runway or an underground piping system was discussed at length. The question was temporarily disposed of by referring the matter to the city engineer. He was instructed to submit at least two plans to the board at the next meeting Monday night.

Routine Business

The Board of Trustees met in regular session Monday night with all members present. After routine business had been disposed of the board took up various matters that were presented personally, among them being the improvement of the Hill avenue section; second reading of Ordinance 208 providing for zoning certain districts; the alley or drainage through the Linden way section; installation of a sprinkling system for the city hall lawn; and other things of interest to the taxpayer. Meeting adjourned at 10:30 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Jones and Mr. and Mrs. George Van Sands drove to Victorsville Saturday afternoon, returning Sunday evening. They report a very enjoyable outing.

Gives Job to Man He Is Called Upon to Identify as Robber

W. E. PALMER, called to Glendale police headquarters at 6:30 o'clock last night, to identify a suspect being held in connection with the robbery of the aforesaid Palmer, Saturday morning, declared the man was not the one but that he looks so much like him that he (Palmer) would employ him (the suspect, Jim Quinn) as a teamster. This he forthwith did.

Which, if involved, is perhaps not as involved as Palmer's system of philosophy. Or maybe it is a case of "dog bite dog" and the victim of the recent hold-up feels that the presence of a personage to all appearances identical with the villain, who tapped him gently but firmly on the sensitive portions of the cerebellum and made off with a wallet containing numerous valuable oblong documents printed on both sides with green ink, will act as a "skiddoo" against further miscreants.

Besides, by consulting the stars, upon whose signs Palmer's system of philosophy is strongly suspected of being built, it is learned that the present "inst." is that mystic day—23-'23.

In the parlance of the occult, this might be "translated to mean, "Skiddoo! Skiddoo!"

Order Lawyers to File Briefs in Zone Suit

City Attorney McNitt of Eagle Rock represented Police Chief Claude Bramble in the first division of the appelate court in Los Angeles Monday morning in the City of Eagle Rock vs. H. Keplinger, wherein the latter sought to obtain a restraining order preventing the chief of police from executing an order issued out of Judge Cruzan's court placing Mr. Keplinger in the city jail for ten days after pleading guilty to conducting a sanitarium in a forbidden zone in Eagle Rock.

The points of law were taken up with result that the city attorney is given 10 days to prepare a brief bearing on the case. Keplinger's attorneys are given twenty days to answer and another five days is given for the attorneys to file a second brief.

GARBAGE HAULING CONTRACT LET FOR 3 YEARS

Trustees Order City Clerk to Prepare Agreement and Also Bonds

The matter of taking care of the tin cans and garbage of Eagle Rock came up for discussion for the second time at the board of trustees meeting Monday night. L. Kazariani and A. Harntian, who made a proposal a week ago to handle the garbage problem of the city for a three-year period, were before the board to see what disposition was made of their proposition.

City Attorney McNitt explained that it would require at least 30 days' notice to oust the present contractor, unless he was disposed to waive any legal claim he might have against the city for not going through with the present contract, but, if this party would release the city from any obligation, the contract with the petitioners could be made out at once.

Trustee Taylor objected to giving Messrs. Kazariani and Harntian a three-year contract, but was willing to enter into a one-year contract at a greater price. The rest of the trustees favored a three-year term and on vote, a motion to that effect carried with Taylor voting no.

The city attorney was instructed to prepare a contract and bond, and if the present contractor waived his claim to have the contract start February 1. In case a legal notice was given the time was set for March 1.

Kazariani said he was willing and ready to put up a personal bond secured by forty acres of vineyard at Fresno.

Reincarnation Fad Is Gripping Londoners

LONDON, Jan. 23.—"London is haunted by at least fifty daylight ghosts of Mary Magdalene and as many more of Cleopatra," declares Reverend Charles Gardiner, well known London clergyman.

"These are not ordinary ghosts," says Mr. Gardiner. "They are human beings, but they believe they are the reincarnation of those famed women of purple past.

"Belief in reincarnation is decidedly on the increase. Cleopatra seems to be rather popular with a certain class of women, because some people are so eaten up with egotism that they would rather be someone infamous than no one at all.

"I know of about fifty women in London today who claim to be the reincarnation of Mary Magdalene. But forty-nine of them must be wrong. Mary Magdalene had seven devils, but we cannot imagine her to be fifty people in one.

"I know a woman who said that she was Lord Byron, and I have spoken to an actor who insisted that he was 'Bloody Mary.' These people believe that Queen Victoria was Alfred the Great and Mr. Gladstone was formerly Cicero.

"There is no doubting their honesty. In most cases it is no pose, but only a form of self-deception."

Birthday Celebration Proved Huge Success

The Gateway Market's birthday party, marking its first anniversary Saturday, was quite a success, according to Manager C. C. Caswell, who was too busy waiting on the 539 customers—more or less—at the meat department, to count the number of those present at the celebration. Five hundred Eskimo pies were given away to the kiddies, both young and old, by Mr. and Mrs. Walter Butterly at the lunch counter. Hot weinie sandwiches were given away at the delicatessen stand as long as the buns lasted. A package of bacon was included with the sale of each ham in the meat department. An orchestra furnished music and a good time was had by all.

GLENDALE MAN IN SUNDAY WEDDING

H. P. Midcalf and Bride Are Guests of Honor at Elaborate Affairs

On their wedding day, Sunday, January 21, 1923, Miss Helen B. Butler of Los Angeles, and Holman P. Midcalf of Glendale were complimented with two affairs. The first honor was a bridal breakfast at the home of Miss Butler's sister, Mrs. E. Day at 153 East Fifty-third street, Los Angeles, and the second compliment was following their wedding in South Pasadena, when they motored to the home of Mr. Midcalf's sister, Mrs. H. L. Redd, 214 East Garfield avenue, Glendale, for a reception and luncheon given by Mrs. Redd and another sister, Mrs. F. O. Haskell.

The wedding ceremony took place at 10 o'clock Sunday morning at the South Pasadena home of Rev. B. D. Snudden, former pastor of the First Methodist church of Glendale. The ring service was performed by Rev. Snudden and the young couple had a small group of attendants, including the bride's father, J. M. Butler; Miss Cleo H. Redd, bridesmaid, and Clair K. At tht breakfast at the Day home, preceding the wedding, the table was prettily decorated, the place cards being very appropriate, an ex-soldier and his bride.

Souvenirs for Guests

The tables were all decorated in pink and white, each place being marked with bridal place cards. After the final course each guest was presented with a souvenir piece of wedding cake.

The young couple were the recipients of many beautiful gifts.

Mr. and Mrs. Midcalf left early in the afternoon for Wilmington, where they took the boat for San Francisco. They were accompanied to the boat by the luncheon guests who showered them with rice and confetti.

Mrs. Midcalf and her parents have resided in Los Angeles where she has been secretary to C. M. Briggs, traffic manager of the Celite Products company. Since the announcement of their engagement she has been complimented with numerous affairs, both in Glendale and Los Angeles.

Mr. Midcalf is in the employ of the Southern California Telephone company in Los Angeles.

They are to make their home after February 15 at 120 West Thirtieth street, Los Angeles.

Woolworth was a weak feature, falling 11 points to 201.

Fisher Body, after falling nearly 40 points to 162, rallied to 177.

Government bonds unchanged; railroad and other bonds irregular.

'SOCIETY' SAVES ONE IN NEW YORK

People in Metropolis Are Protected With Thousand Organizations

By JOHN L. SPIVAK
For International News Service

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—From the moment you are born until the moment you die you can't go wrong in New York. No matter what you do or want to do, there is a society that will save you from doing it.

There are societies devoted to the saving of everything from babies to animals and souls to "indigent females," "friendless men" and "respectable girls." There is even one for the protection of non-smokers.

These societies, associations and organizations, numbering about 1000, with their branches, save anything from souls to the Adirondack mountains. The innermost and most inner affairs connected with your life are subjects for being saved.

The incidental things in your life are also saved. For instance, if you lose your civil liberties there is a society to save them for you; should you need to be defended there is a society to defend you, and, perchance, should you need to be imprisoned society itself will oblige you.

There are societies to see to it that you are born properly, to protect you from getting bad milk when you are a baby, from being spanked when you grow older, from straying off the straight and narrow path when you mature, and from committing suicide when you should.

Creed Doesn't Count

If you get sick, or drunk, or lost or "pinched" there is a society that will save you. If you are Irish, Jewish, Armenian or Czecho-Slovakian, and need relief, some one will relieve you.

There is a society to give you clothes when you lack them and another to take them away when you can spare them.

There is a society for free milk for Italy and temperance for Scandinavian sailors.

There is a society to save you from reading books that you shouldn't read and from going to places where you oughn't to go, to save you from vice, poverty, sickness and the grave.

But if you should finally escape all these societies and die, there is one that will see to it that you are given a proper burial. And then, if that isn't enough, there is another that will investigate the activities of your soul in the life beyond.

In short, you can't go wrong here.

Ya gotta be saved!

OPTIMISTIC OVER REAPPORTIONING

A. Burlingame Johnson Is Certain North Will Be Glad to Give Up

By GIL. A. COWAN
Special to The Evening News

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 23.—While some correspondents are singing a dirge over the possibilities of reapportionment at this session of the California legislature, Senator A. Burlingame Johnson of Pasadena today expressed optimism regarding the issue and gave out an interview in which he said San Franciscans will be glad, before long, to give Los Angeles that which is its due.

Evidently we are to look ahead a few days for something more important on the subject of new legislative division of the state, but just what the move will be remains secret. At any rate the San Francisco newspaper men are watchfully waiting for the south's next move.

Here Comes th' Bride!

Social note: Hugh A. Pomeroy of Redondo Beach is one assemblyman more occupied with marriage laws, than any other legislation, for it was predicted that over a week end he would take unto himself a bride—a Lankershim lass, whom he knew in his school days at Burbank. The bride was Miss Frances Muir. They were wedded Sunday in Los Angeles.

Hugh has had quite a career in his short life. Starting on a dairy between Glendale and Burbank, he succeeded in getting to college, becoming a pastor, served in the army, returned to his Burbank home and became secretary of the chamber of commerce there, went to Redondo Beach in similar work, became secretary of the Bay Cities Sanitary Commission, elected to the legislature to fight Los Angeles' outfall sewage disposal close to the beaches, was made editor of a newspaper, and now is a Benedict, if reports in the Sacramento Union are correct.

Beek Busy As Bee

Secretary Joseph Beek of the senate is another Southern Californian who boasts a new title every five minutes. He got his start on a career in Pasadena, but now hails from Balboa Beach in Orange county. Besides being secretary of a development association, secretary of the chamber of commerce, trustee of his city's schools, secretary of the library board and member of a half dozen civic organizations, he heads a real estate firm, owns a private yacht, operates a ferry line and claims to be a champion salt water fisherman. Surely, he's in the swim here, and reads the roll without a fumble every five minutes.

Shave Down Figures

A pencil copy of Governor Richardson's budget is expected to be presented the legislature the first of the week. The board of control is working night and day to get the figures whipped into shape and shaved down where they meet the approval of the executive.

Economy absolutely is being effected, too, even the most skeptical agree; with only 252 bills introduced so far this session, as compared with 486 two years ago. Senator Herbert W. Slater of Santa Rosa expresses the belief that less than 500 will come before both houses, a new low record.

In the matter of engrossment and printing alone thousands of dollars are being saved and lawyers and laymen alike can thank the stars for fewer and better laws.

Don't Expect Much

The only riffle that appears the least bit rough is the senate's investigation of campaign expenses by the various associations which fought initiative measures last election. Senator Herbert C. Jones heads the committee appointed by Lieut. Governor C. C. Young to spend $3000 in the inquiry, but it is improbable that 30 cents' worth of results will be obtained, because a newspaper man knows just about how much information the corporation publicity men will give.

For Child Welfare

Assemblyman T. M. Wright, having gained considerable popularity for his dry measure, now seeks $50,000 for child welfare, declaring that the state spends thousands of dollars in research work for live stock, but little or nothing for the betterment of its future citizens.

Assemblyman David C. Williams, a physician, is going to the mat with the dope evil in a bill he is now preparing. Assemblyman Frank C. Weller of Glendale seeks to make auctioneers liable for sale of store fixtures, without giving due notice to sale.

Firm of Attorneys in New Los Angeles Office

Mattison B. Jones, Leonard Wilson and Dwight W. Stephenson have announced the removal of their law offices to Suite 522, National Bank Building, at Fifth and Spring streets, Los Angeles.

This announcement is of particular interest in Glendale because of the prominence of Mr. Jones and Mr. Stephenson as local residents and citizens. Mr. Jones is well known in local affairs as is Mr. Stephenson, who is one of the city councilmen.

Heart and Home Woman's Page Health and Happiness

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

THE SHUT IN'S RETURN

"If I could only be useful, if I could only be some good in the world the way I used to be."

That is the constant complaint of a woman whom ill health has removed from an active useful life and shut into a sick room for what may be the rest of her life.

Of course she grieves over the loss of pleasures, but she grieves more bitterly over not being able to do things for people as she used to do.

Yet all the time there is one big thing she could do and she doesn't do it!

She could try to respond to all the love and sympathy and the efforts to make her life as pleasant as possible by being as cheerful as possible.

That could be her gift of service in return. And it would be a very large gift both in the effort it would require and in the help it would give.

An invalid is always a strain on a household. No matter how hard he or she tries not to be any trouble, he must upset any normal household. Generally invalidism means some heavy financial burden or burden of work on others. Presumably the invalid can't help it. But he can try not to add to that burden the further burden of his depression and melancholy.

The Biggest Return

Hard? Yes. Frightfully hard. But it can be done because it is done by Shut Ins who realize that that is the biggest return they can make for all their friends try to do for them.

If one snatches time from a busy life to go and spend an hour or two in a Shut In's room, it is an ill return if the invalid unloads upon you all her bitterness and resentment and rebellion and disappointment at her lot.

A nurse who has nursed many chronic cases told me that the strain of the physcial work, though that is often arduous, is nothing to the strain of trying to buoy up some patient who is depressed over her condition and will not fight that depression.

She Never Smiled

She said she once nursed an invalid who simply would not smile and though other things about her work were easy that was the hardest case she ever had.

Of course it isn't easy to smile when one is sick and shut in and has pain and weakness and loneliness to bear. Far, far from it! But if one can so far conquer one's natural reactions as to smile and put the best face on things, oh! how much it means for everyone concerned. I think the smile of an invalid who has learned the hard lesson that kicking against the pricks gets her nowhere and makes it harder for everyone, and has taught herself to smile, is one of the sweetest sights on earth.

She Will Get More Visits

And the invalid who will try to make her sick room a place where others may rest a moment in the midst of a busy life and may feel the presence of a serenity and courage, instead of a place where depression and bitterness must be fought against, helps herself as well as others.

For every Shut In sets greater store by visits from the outside world than by almost anything on earth. And no matter how brave and kind and dutiful her friends may be, they will come more often if they do not have to fight off her depression and listen to an account of her aches and pains and pour out themselves in sympathy. That's human nature and the sooner every Shut In recognizes it the happier she makes her own life.

BEAUTY CHATS by EDNA KENT FORBES

BLACKHEADS

Blackheads are unpleasant little marks which seem to come over night (though actually it takes months and months to bring them on), and which take an unendingly long time to cure. They are caused by neglect of the skin. Not enough soap and water, principally, if one must tell the brutal truth, and by overloading the digestion with food, and by constipation. Usually they are preceded by pimples which enlarge the pores. These enlarged glands then fill up with a yellowish waxy looking material which works out to the skin's surface and which there absorbs all the dirt around it, acquiring its name—blackhead.

Now the first thing to do in treating these pests is to diet. The stomach should be given a rest varying in length from a week to six months during which time, no sweets, no pies or puddings or cake should be taken, very little fried food, mixed soft drinks avoided and heavy meats. Salads and green vegetables should be eaten liberally, as well as fruit, and six glasses of water a day should be taken as well.

This in itself should cure constipation, but in obstinate cases, or those common cases where the condition has existed unsuspected for years, other means must be tried. Soon the body will be able to take care of itself, the pores no longer will be called upon to take off too much of the waste matter and many blackheads will simply disappear.

The rest must be treated by external means—a daily hot bath with a stiff brush over the skin, the Blackhead Cleansing Powder I advise so often, cleansing cream, followed by a hot soap and water wash, and the liberal use of astringents.

It takes time to restore a complexion to perfection, but it can be done.

Nineteen—(a) If you grow fatter the bust will naturally increase. A gentle massage with olive oil or cocoa butter is also helpful. (b) If your girl friend's neck is freakishly thick she should see a doctor about it. Don't let her paint it with iodine, it is too drying. (c) There is no special cause for this habit of blushing easily. It is an extremely charming habit belonging to demure young girls and is unfortunately soon outgrown. (d) Massage with cocoa butter, as well as exercise, will make the shoulders plumper.

(e) If you pawned your engagement ring with an honest concern it could be safely mailed you if it were insured by post and it would cost you the loan, the interest, plus the price of posting and insurance. If the concern were honest they would not change the stone, but as you seem so doubtful of the whole thing I would advise you to consult a lawyer to write the letter and handle the matter for you. A shady concern would have respect for a lawyer's letter, and it would be worth the small fee it would cost you.

Answer—No, there is nothing you can put on the hands to keep them from becoming soiled, but here is a splendid help in keeping the nails clean. Before doing your work, scratch the fingernails over a cake of laundry soap, so as to fill up the under-edges of the nails with it. This keeps dirt from getting under the nails. After the work is done, you can simply take a nail file and clean out the soap, when you wash your hands. Women who do much work in their gardens in summer should also adopt this method of keeping the nails clean.

Bride—"How shall I wash the inside of my enamel ware coffee pot?"

Answer—Never wash the inside of a coffe or teapot with soapsuds. When graniteware and agateware become badly discolored by the coffee or tea, fill the pot almost to the top with cold water, add one tablespoon of borax to the water, and heat gradually to the boiling point. Rinse with hot water, wipe and keep on back of range until dry.

A Reader Friend — "I have scorched a waist sleeve badly. What shall I do to make it white again? The cotton fibres do not seem to be burned, but are only stained brown."

Answer—You are lucky that you did not injure the fibres, for then there would have been nothing to do. But as it is, you can restore the former whiteness to the garment by this method; simply wet the scorched portion of the sleeve in cold water and hang the waist in strong sunshine (out of doors if possible); repeat this method day after day until the stain is gone. You might also leave the waist out of doors overnight, in addition, as the night air is an excellent bleach.

Dot—"Is there any harm in half melting butter in order to cream it more quickly, in mixing a cake?"

Answer—Yes. Do not melt it. But this is what you can do to make the process shorter: Wash out your mixing bowl with scalding water, before you put the ingredients into it, and dry it quickly. In this way, it will still be warm from having been washed, and you can now put your butter into it and begin creaming.

Inquirer—"I would appreciate if you would publish directions for knitting a size 36 slip-on sweater—the kind that one wears 'Peter Pan' collar and cuffs with."

Answer—You will find the directions for such a sweater in the column on this coming Friday, January 26.

Grant Continuance in Dancer's Damage Suit

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 23.—With a continuance granted for thirty days, during which time it is expected attorneys for both sides will reach an agreement, the suit of Dorothy Clark, 17 year old stage dancer, against Herbert Rawlinson, film acto, for $200,000 for an alleged attack upon her when she was 15 years old, was at a standstill today.

The continuance came late yesterday after numerous fervid love letters, said to have been written by Rawlinson to the young dancer, were introduced. In granting the delay, which was asked on the grounds that Mrs. Ethel Clark, the girl's mother and said to be an important witness for both sides, is ill. Judge J. P. Wood strongly intimated that "an agreement out of court would be very desirable."

Diet and Health

By Lulu Hunt Peters, M.D.

Author of "Diet and Health, with Key to the Calories"

WOOD ALCOHOL POISONING.

Yesterday I gave you a little lesson on how you can tell the difference between the terms neuritis, neuralgia, and neurasthenia. I told you that general neuritis was not a common disease and that when there was a true general neuritis it was most often due to alcohol poisoning.

I told you the story of the man who became blind from optic neuritis due to wood alcohol poisoning, and I ended by saying that today I would tell you more about the neuritis you might be suffering from without any stain on your 'scutcheon.

Neuritis means actual inflammation of the nerve tissue, and many pains due to conditions other than neuritis are attributed to neuritis.

Before I tell you about the causes of neuritis, let me tell you a little bit about the neuritis caused by wood alcohol because this is a subject of very great interest now. We hear of so many people going blind and dying from this cause.

Wood alcohol is a very powerful poison. So powerful that blindness may be caused merely by inhaling the vapor. Milton J. Rosenau of Harvard says that quantities even as small as two-tenths of one percent in the inspired air, inhaled for any length of time, may accumulate in the body and cause poisonous effects.

Industrial wood alcohol poisoning may be suffered by workers in the use of shalac, paint and varnish, the makers of dyes and explosives, the makers of celluloid and some other industries. If thorough ventilation is not provided in these industries, the workmen may suffer for some time from attacks of dizziness and headaches and weakness. Then they may get an inflammation of the optic nerve, complete blindness and sometimes death.

Wood alcohol should not be used for external use on the human body and it certainly must not be used for internal use in the human body. It has a very selective effect. When we say a drug has a selective effect in the body we mean that after it is absorbed it makes a bee line for some particular organ in the body and afects that more than other structures. Alcohol of any description makes a bee line for the brain and musses that up more or less, depending upon the quantity imbibed, before it does anything else.

Wood alcohol is not satisfied with the brain tissue in general but casts an eagle eye around for a place it can settle down and do its most spectacular work. So it makes a jump for the fibres of the optic nerve that go to the macula lutea, the spot which is the seat of the direct and most acute vision of the retina (the delicate membrane lining the inner back part of the eye in which the fibres of the optic nerve end) It causes an inflammation of these nerve endings, and, in severe cases, the nerve shrivels up, thus causing total blindness. As small a quantity as a teaspoonful of wood alcohol has done this.

There are causes of neuritis other than alcohol or wood alcohol poisoning. A pressure on the nerve can cause it to become inflamed. This is known as a pressure neuritis. There is a paralysis known as a Saturday Night Paralysis. You go to sleep with your arm over the back of a settee and put your head on your arm. As soon as the arm begins to get uncomfortable you wake up and you don't get pressure neuritis from this. But if you have had a little too much of the cup that sears you don't awaken until next morning. You find your arm paralyzed.

Here I have again lingered so long on this alcoholic neuritis that I have not come to the type you are suffering from. Well, we'll have to have our talk on this subject again next week I think, and I'll tell you about the neuritis you may be suffering from without any stain on your 'scutcheon.

THEATRES

The Glendale

The story of "The Fast Mail" is laid in the south and the action opens with the "Dixieland Steeplechase." Of course, Hero, Lady-Love and Villain are all there. And this immediately leads to trouble.

They're off! But there's crooked work afoot. Horses plunge and riders fall but still Hero races on, hotly pursued by Villain. Neck and neck they round the turn. And then . . . .

Complications follow thick and fast, after that hectic race. A murder is committed. Villain escapes, taking with him Lady-Love. Then comes Hero, with fast automobiles, speeding river boats, and, last of all, "The Fast Mail" — whereby Hero saves Lady-Love in the nick of time. A thriller of thrillers that will be a fountain of youth to many.

The T. D. & L.

Elaine Hammerstein in "Evidence" is the attraction at the T. D. & L. Theatre, today only. A worthy successor to "One Week of Love," many critics judge this Miss Hammerstein's best work.

For Thursday night, Manager Ralph Allan announces a big spectacular preview of an eight-reel screen drama with an all-star cast of favorite screen players, many of whom will be present in person. The unwritten code of film ethics prevents Allan from making further announcement at this time, except to say that the director of this big feature is Sidney Franklin, who directed "East Is West."

Make your plans to be at the T. D. & L. on Thursday night, Manager Allan urges, calling attention to the many times he has offered Glendalians delightful surprises with his previews.

BUY PLUMBING DIRECT

BUY YOUR plumbing direct from a responsible Plumbing Dealer.

Don't pay a third party an extra fee to buy it for you. A General Contractor, naturally and legitimately requires you to pay him for acting as his agent. Then again, he usually gives the job to the lowest bidder. The lowest bidder naturally figures on the cheapest job he thinks will pass muster. The results are nearly always disappointing.

BUY DIRECT; pay only the price of the plumbing with no added fee to anyone. Add to the cost, the amount you save in that way and get a better plumbing job.

Above all else, however, select a member of the Sanitary Development League of Southern California.

The League is composed of over 200 plumbing concerns in Southern California, who are pledged to maintain the highest business standards.

Their membership in the League is itself a guarantee of skilled workmanship, high-grade materials and fair prices.

DISMISSALS FOR OFFICIALS LOOM

One Hundred Thousand Austrians Will Be Dropped, Plan of League

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 2'. — One hundred thousand Austrian state officials are to be dismissed in the near future under the plan by which the League of Nations is attempting to rehabilitate Austria's national finances. This fact was recently stated to members of the Friends' Relief mission in Vienna by Herr Schueller, section chief of the Austrian foreign office.

The problem of absorbing these men into other lines of activity is a problem with which the Austrian government itself must deal. The Quaker Relief mission, however, is helping to meet the problem by rendering assistance to the land settlements, co-operative garden settlements which will absorb many of the men and their families. The Friends will also assist individual families of dismissed state officials who are in need of emergency relief, as they are already assisting a large number of destitute members of the salaried and professional classes.

Outlook Is Bright

In his interview with the Friends, Herr Schueller was optimistic about the general outlook for the future, feeling that it is better than during the last several years. The League of Nations' plan for financial rehabilitation, however, does not remedy the present distress among the Austrian people themselves. The necessity of enforcing the stringent reforms involved in the plan will tend rather to increase the distress among individuals for the next year or two; and emergency relief is necessary to preserve as much as possible of the energy and faith of the people in order that they may take their parts in working for national reconstruction.

Great efforts are being made among the Viennese themselves to relieve suffering in their country. A relief committee, under the auspices of Chancellor Seipel, is raising funds for wood and coal, the Viennese children's doctors appeal for clothing for needy school children, the various hospitals and homes for blind people and for the old make collections through the Vienna press, the war invalids' organization arranged for house to house collections, and collection days and charity concerts are frequently held for the First Aid society. All these efforts, however, are insufficient to meet the need.

The Friends' Relief mission, through its middle class relief work, is aiding many artists, teachers, students, members of the former aristocracy and others whose incomes were formerly large but who are now unable to provide themselves with even the bare necessities of life. The mission is also importing cows which are sold to various welfare institutions in return for payments of milk, and this milk is in turn used for relief purposes. It is likewise lending assistance to the land settlement movement and is helping to support a number of children's homes, tuberculosis dispensaries and similar institutions which would be unable to continue but for such aid. Five hundred thousand dollars is needed to carry on the Quaker program of relief during the coming year.

Recently the Friends extended their fresh milk distribution to include a number of groups which had not previously received milk. Eight times during the first day of this new distribution a mother turned to her child with the cry, "Now you know what milk tastes like."

GETS PATENT ON MATTRESS GUARD

Page Spring Cover Co. Will Manufacture Product in Glendale Factory

William C. Page, of the Page Spring Cover company, 306 East Broadway, has patented a very novel and efficient mattress-protector that is at once a spring-cover, giving a box spring effect to the more comfortable, more durable and less expensive coil spring.

The article, which is manufactured in Glendale, possesses a number of decided merits. First, it is clean and sanitary, because it is washable. Laundered at intervals, it insures the absolute cleanliness of the bed, and may be whisked off and on without removing or in any way interfering with the springs.

Second, it saves the mattress from spring cutting. The housewife with an eye for economy can see at a glance that a spring cover will pay for itself in a very short time, in actual economy effected on mattress wear.

Marks Big Advance

Third, it is inexpensive, although made of the best quality durable, heavy eight ounce striped ticking. An investigation of his prices, Mr. Page promises, will be a revelation.

Fourth, it is in every way a most convenient accessory to any bed equipped with coil springs, and the greatest improvement possible to make on a bed, one of those inevitable steps forward that characterizes American industry.

Glendale is proud to have such a novel and serviceable accessory manufactured here.

Hotel Living No Joke
War Gods Get Active
All Kinds of Crops
Gasoline Price Probe

—By Gil A. Cowan—

EVER walk by a hotel and see the sleek, comfortable-looking folks idling away hours in the lobby? Gee, but how you envied them, but, if you are one of those unfortunates who are "too comfortable," you will express the deepest pity for the canary birds and owls that have to live in a cage.

By gollies, living in a hotel is no joke, unless they have a golf links, riding academy, dance floor, swimming pool, etc., etc., and a half dozen more etc. Whiling away hours in an easy chair, smoking, crocheting or just moodily contemplating things as they are not, makes a cynic out of the best of men, and women, too.

Do not envy the person of his hotel habitat. A home and a garden and a motor car to tinker with and a few chickens to feed are worth more than medicine for dyspepsia and dipsomania.

With the Russians ready to back Germany in expelling France from the Ruhr it looks as though a real man's sized war is about ready to flare forth.

Perhaps that is why the kind-hearted Americans have been feeding the starving soviets—so they can step forth and lick the world, to crudely express one's idea of the Lenine scheme.

Also, this country has been kind to the Armenians and Turks to little or no avail. It is simply fattening the calf for slaughter and, while it may be humane, there seems to be no reason why we should consistently "pour our dollars down rat holes," as the Sacramento Bee puts it.

So much more good could be done right here at home among those who will at least have a chance to live and accomplish something.

With the worries of the world upon his shoulders, President Harding is recuperating from illness which has been marked by a day of complete rest.

Some weeks ago there appeared in a national journal a story titled, "All Four Years Are the Hardest." It drew the picture of a self-made man like Warren G. Harding, pulling himself up to the pinnacle of American achievement, and then finding the presidency but an honor in which his life, his thoughts, his acts are all subject to attack.

Only an indomitable spirit like that of Theodore Roosevelt, or the humor of a William Howard Taft is able to endure the hardships of such a post. For there is no one to look up to for advice except the God Almighty and there is no one to trust except a good dog such as Laddie Boy.

California's crops in 1922 amounted to somewhere close to $400,000,000. That from the farms alone would indicate that the Golden State is not dependent on its tourists' trade.

It is believed that this production will lead the list of all states, thus putting Illinois, Iowa and Kansas to shame. Grapes, pears, oranges and cantaloupes were all record crops while peaches came in second.

At the same time the mineral wealth in gold, oil, silver, etc., hits a figure that is equal to the agricultural production of the middle western states and on top of that we have industries here in California that compare favorably with those outside of the few great eastern centers of population.

Certainly, there seems to be no question as to the future of this great state and the prediction that it will become the center of the highest civilization and the densest population the world has ever known does not seem to be a bit ambitious.

A Los Angeles legislator is calling for an investigation of the cost of gasoline. The federal government delved thoroughly into the meat packing business some years ago with the result that the price has been higher ever since, it seems.

Likewise, the Standard Oil company was accused of being a trust and the facts revealed showed that its methods had resulted in great savings to the users of crude oil products.

Somehow these probes leave the victim healthier than ever before. The stockholders find out something about their own business at the government's expense.

And it is a noticeable fact that the very hint of an investigation sends the price of crude oil up 10 cents a barrel. There are a lot of unit-owners in southern California wells who wouldn't mind if the price went up $10 a barrel.

Modify Dry Ruling in Fight on Influenza

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—Orders went out from national prohibition enforcement headquarters today to "let down the bars" to physicians whose liquor prescription blank quotas have been exhausted.

This action was taken, Acting Prohibition Commissioner J. E. Jones said, to enable doctors to cope with the "flu" epidemic, which has reached serious proportions in some sections of the country.

Under the law physicians are allowed to issue 100 liquor prescriptions every three months. Numerous "flu" cases caused many doctors to use up their quota of prescription blanks before the expiration of the three months' period.

WHAT DIFFERENCE FEW YEARS MAKE?

Mr. Walker and Mr. Flynn Now Recall That Certain Time Awhile Ago

By TAD
For International News Service

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—A few years ago when the Hon. Leon P. Flynn was matchmaker for Madison Square Garden, he was very careful about who fought there. Very few new ones got into the main event. Leo must know the boxer's family well or was related to him.

One day a tough looking Irish kid busted into Leo's gilded den and said that he craved employment. That gent was Mickey Walker. Leo gave him the air inside a minute.

Well, it happens that this same guy, Mr. Walker, now holds the welterweight championship.

Mr. Flynn is out of the Garden and only a manager. He has a welterweight who is desirous of picking a quarrel with Walker. Mr. Flynn's boy is Dave Shade.

Well, sir, the way Mr. Walker gives Mr. Flynn and his men the go-by these days is a shame. Whenever Leo approaches Mickey, the latter, stealing a line from McIntyre and Heath, chirps "go away from heah, you smell like a livery stable."

Everybody knows it but Joe himself.

Beckett's doctor says he can't fight.—Headline.

The rest of us knew that years ago.

Dempsey's Prospective Opponents

The New York boxing commission has listed Jack Dempsey's challengers so that there's no one in sight for him to fight except Harry Wills. The lineup to date is as follows:

Jess Willard—too old.
Tom Gibbons—too little.
Bill Brennan—too soft.
Others—Too willing.

If Mr. Dempsey WANTS to fight, of course, he can go with Wills. If he doesn't he can stand around and wait until "the public demands" something or other.

That suited him.

Some years ago in Boston Johnny Mooney conducted a boxing club. Just before the fight started, Johnny had the announcer read off the matches for the next week.

One night while sitting at the ringside, he handed up next week's card and waited until the silver tongued chirper wised up the crowd.

After the first four rounder was announced there was quite a hand. After the next four rounder was announced another cheer went up. After the six round semi-final was read another big cheer went up. As the final (a corking match) was read off, and just a second before the cheering broke, a deep voiced guy in the gallery leaned over and barked:

"Mooney—that's the rent."

WOOD COWAN

Trouble always comes in pairs. This seems doubly true in the realm of fisticuffs—that is, to the opponents of the Shugrues at least.

First came Joe and he made trouble a-plenty to aspiring lightweights ten years back. Joe never won a title but he outpointed Welsh, the lightweight champ, twice in no-decision bouts and was at the top of his form when misfortune slapped him a wallop on the chin and K. O.'d the chance he had to gain the crown. Joe nearly lost his eyesight and was forced to retire.

The elder Shugrue started as a bantam, then grew into a featherweight. One of his early achievements was a four-round knockout of Benny Leonard. The thumping fests that Johnny Dundee and Joe used to stage were classics, with Johnny getting a shade the worst of it because of Joe's superior hitting ability. Shugrue fought two scraps with Charley White, back in 1912, with honors even. He cuffed Leach Cross, Harry Stone, who is still going strong in Australia, "One Round" Hogan, Owen Moran and many others in his day. For let it be known that Joe was mighty clever with his dukes. He was a straight hitter and fast, never stepped backwards, keeping his opponents on the defensive, and that made him pretty popular.

Now comes Shugrue number two, sometimes known as "Young Shugrue" and then again as Johnny. He's Joe's brother. Under the tutelege of Shugrue that was, Johnny has been coming along faster than a race horse.

He has won decisions over Johnny Dundee, Willie Jackson, whom he gave the trimming of his long career, and then Elino Flores, the clever Filipino lightweight—although we feel that the best Johnny deserved was a draw in that fight. Nevertheless this youngster is the makings, and with a little more ring experience will be a real contender.

Johnny, like his illustrious brother, is a good in-fighter, and a lion heart beats under his shirt, believe us. With that make-up between his hat and his shoes he ought to be champion under Joe's coaching.

BEAR AND TROJAN QUINTETS TANGLE

Battle Will Open Conference Season of Pacific Coast Tossers

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 23.—California's Golden Bear and U. S. C.'s bronze Trojan will meet for the second time this school year when the Cal basketball quintet tangles with Coach Les Turner's basket performers next Friday night at U. S. C. This battle will open the Pacific coast conference season, also the first of a series of four games that the Trojans will play the northern institution, two of which are on the home grounds and two in the north.

Turner's aggregation have steadily improved their game since the last game with L. A. A. C., and are capable of holding their own against big league play. More team work and less individual efforts have put the Cardinal and Gold in the limelight of basketball circles.

GREB WINNER IN BOUT WITH SHADE

Fighters Hooted by Crowds As Both Leave Ring Unmarked by Blows

JERSEY CITY, Jan. 23.—Harry Greb of Pittsburgh successfully defended his American light-heavyweight boxing championship last night against Billy Shade of California in a scheduled twelve-round bout which went to the limit.

Greb won the majority of the rounds, but was booed continually by the crowd after the fifth round because of the lightness of his attack. The bout was fast, but neither man produced a stinging punch and both left the ring unblemished.

The champion used his peculiar "windmill" style, missing often, but even so he invariably landed several blows to the Californian's one. Shade was aggressive in spots and willing to exchange in the puffy rallies.

MATCH FIRPO TO BATTLE BRENNAN

South American Champion Must Eliminate 'Bill' on Road to Title

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—Arrangements for a heavyweight boxing match at Madison Square Garden February 12 between Bill Brennan and Louis Firpo, South American champion, were completed when Leo Flynn, the Chicagoan's manager, signed a contract for the bout.

Promoter Tex Rickard previously had received cabled acceptance of his terms for the contest from Firpo. The latter is expected to leave Buenos Aires about February 1. Firpo has been promised a championship match with Jack Dempsey.

600 Cases of Whisky Stolen in Daring Raid

CHICAGO, Jan. 23.—A band of twelve "booze bandits" rode into the downtown district on a big motor truck early today, kidnaped a watchman and a newsboy and chugged away with 600 cases of whisky valued at $75,000 from the concern of Delaney & Murphy.

The scene of the raid is a few blocks from main police headquarters.

Most of the bandits carried pistols. They chopped through an eighteen-inch stone wall from the basement of an adjoining building. Then they smashed open a large steel vault which contained the liquor. The kidnaped watchman and newsboy managed to liberate themselves and reported the robbery.

Hunted Slayer Shoots Self in Movie Theatre

DENVER, Jan. 23.—With the entire police force searching for him, Louis Cavellitti, a former federal vocational student at Fort Collins, entered the balcony of a moving picture house last night and amidst a crowd committed suicide by shooting, according to a police report today.

Cavellitti was charged with killing two persons Sunday and the wounding of three others. Police this morning said Cavellitti's attentions to a married woman had been rejected and in a sudden fit of insanity, he shot and killed Mrs. Christian Nider, Silvie Picconi, and seriously wounding Jimmie Earillo, Mike Nider and six-year-old Johnny Darighi.

Germans Claim French Invasion Is Illegal

LONDON, Jan. 23.—Germany's third formal protest against French occupation of the Ruhr was made to Great Britain today. Herr Sthamer, the German ambassador, presented two notes to the foreign office charging that the French military move was illegal.

The WORLD OVER

By FRANKLIN B. MORSE.

Within the last few weeks little more has been said about the proposed mixed match between Jack Dempsey and Strangler Ed Lewis. Very few ever thought that such a match could be brought about and many believe it has entered into its inevitable oblivion. However, it does not seem that this is likely. It is almost a safe bet that the affair periodically will be revived.

It is interesting to note that the question as to whether the boxer or the wrestler would win in such a mixed match has been definitely settled. There can be no question but what one punch would settle the wrestler according to those who follow the fighting game. Wrestling fans are equally certain that before a blow could be struck, the wrestler would get the boxer in a grip that would have him quickly squealing for mercy.

There you are, you pay your money and take your choice and the chances are that the question never will be settled—never. It never will be settled because whenever such a match has been staged in the past and say, the boxer has won, the adherents of the wrestler have raised a howl and said that the mat man in the engagement was a dub and deserved to be licked. When the boxer has been pinned and helpless, the boxing fraternity has raised a howl that the fighter lacked intelligence and if so and so had been in his place it would have been a different story.

There is one thing to be said in the case of a match between Dempsey and Lewis. There could be no criticism that either of them was a dub. Each is supreme in his specialty, and each is given the verdict for being as good a man as either sport has produced. It would come nearer settling the disputed question than could the matching of any other pair of men.

Lewis, undoubtedly, has given the matter a lot of study and thought and has worked out a scheme of battle which he is confident would return him the winner in such a contest with Dempsey. Generally speaking his plan is to cover the vulnerable points on his face with his arms, and by crouching so as to keep his body as well covered as possible, close in on Dempsey and get a grip on his opponent before he is able to do any harm.

"My training for the wrestling game has produced a covering of stomach muscles that would protect my midriff from any blow except one of the most smashing type, and I don't think Dempsey could get at me to deliver it" says Lewis.

On the other hand, Dempsey has had little to say on the subject although, of course, he does not admit that he could be defeated.

Battling Nelson is confident that some day he will be the manager of one or more world's champion boxers, and in that event, if Tex Rickard, the New York fight promoter, ever wants to talk to Nelson about a match, the promoter first will have to come through with $480 to the Battler in person.

According to Nelson, when he was hard pressed for some money at one time, he asked Rickard for the loan of $500. Rickard grudgingly let him have $20. "After the money he made off me in the Goldfield fight against Gans," said Nelson, "that was pretty small business and I haven't forgotten it. Now he'll have to hand me that $480 before he can begin to talk with me about matching any of my champions."

The Southern Pacific association of the Amateur Athletic union has made plans for the staging of five swimming events for men and three for women during the 1923 season. Application for the events has been made. These championships are to be held at San Diego and Coronado Tent City, California.

The events sought are the 50 and 100-yard man's races, the and 100-yard man's races, the 220-yard breast stroke races and the 200-yard relay. For the women, the events sought are the 100-yard breast stroke, 100-yard backstroke and the 50-yard free style.

A competent swimming coach has been secured and it is planned, not only to go after coast championships, but to develop teams that will be able to furnish competition in national events, a coterie of southern water sportsmen being interested in getting that section on the aquatic map.

A compilation of the swimming meets held in California brings out the fact that the beaches, bathhouses and resorts held the big majority of competitive events and are doing more to maintain the interest in the sport and to develop swimmers than are the clubs and colleges.

There were 52 championships held. Of these 42 were conducted by beaches and resorts, while the remaining ten were divided between the Olympic club of San Francisco and Stanford university.

There is no gainsaying that the majority of the California swimmers who have become nationally known, gained their primary tuition at resorts and were well on the road when they arrived at college or were taken on by clubs as athletic members. Here only the finishing touches were put on to a product that was complete in all the essentials.

Closed Cars That Endure

There are two distinct types of closed cars. Consider them carefully before you buy.

One features a low price and furnishes but temporary shelter against inclement weather. Inferior materials are used to reduce costs. Workmanship and finish are cheap and coachwork is makeshift.

The other type of closed bodies is represented by Studebaker quality, for which there is no substitute.

Studebaker enclosed bodies give years of satisfactory service—sturdy one-piece ash pillars extend the full height of the body; wind and rain and sun and a decade of use will never warp the panels; doors shut positively and accurately; protection is afforded against rattles, squeaks and dust, and the wide doors make it easy to get in or out.

They are beautiful and in good taste, inside and out, as you want your car and your home to be.

They are as comfortable as your favorite easy chair — painstaking craftsmanship makes that possible.

Naturally Studebaker closed cars are completely equipped—for the same reason that your living room is completely furnished.

When you buy a Studebaker closed car, you buy a body that is worthy of a Studebaker chassis.

There is not the slightest compromise in either—in design, materials, workmanship or appearance.

Depreciation is therefore low and satisfaction with Studebaker closed cars universal.

Prices are as low as is commensurate with highest quality. The Studebaker body plants and facilities exceed those of any other automobile manufacturer. Studebaker is unsurpassed in resources and ability to give maximum intrinsic value.

Studebaker has built quality vehicles for 71 years—and that high quality standard will never be sacrificed.

"I ken appreciate him if he ken keep books," replied Grayson. "That's all I ask of him."

When Bridge emerged from the bedroom he was clothed in white duck trousers, a soft shirt, and a pair of tennis shoes, and such a change had they wrought in his appearance that neither Grayson nor his employer would have known him had they not seen him come from the room into which they had sent him to make the exchange of clothing.

"Feel better?" asked the boss, smiling.

"Clothes are but an incident with me," replied Bridge. "I wear them because it is easier to do so than it would be to dodge the weather and the police. Whatever I may have upon my back affects in no way what I have within my head. No, I cannot say they I feel any better, since these clothes are not as comfortable as my old ones. However if it pleases Mr. Grayson that I should wear a pink kimono while working for him I shall gladly wear a pink kimono. What shall I do first, sir?" The question was directed toward Grayson.

"Sit down here an' see what you ken make of this bunch of trouble," replied the foreman. "I'll talk with you again this evenin'."

As Grayson and his employer quitted the office and walked together toward the corrals the latter's brow was corrugated by thought and his facial expression that of one who labors to fasten upon a baffling and illusive recollection.

"It beats all, Grayson," he said presently; "but I am sure that I have known this new bookkeeper of yours before. The moment he came out of that room dressed like a human being I knew that I had known him; but for the life of me I can't place him. I should be willing to wager considerable, however, that his name is not Bridge."

"S'pect you're right," assented Grayson. "He's probably one o' them eastern dude bank clerks what's gone wrong and come down here to hide. Mighty fine place to hide jest now, too.

"And, say, speakin' of banks," he went on, "what'll I do 'bout sendin' over to Cuivaca fer the pay tomorrow. Next day's pay day. I don't like to send this here bum, I can't trust a greaser no better, an' I can't spare none of my white men thet I ken trust."

"Send him with a couple of the most trustworthy Mexicans you have," suggested the boss.

"There ain't no sich critter," replied Grayson; "but I guess that's the best I ken do. I'll send him along with Tony an' Benito—they hate each other too much to frame up anything together, an' they both hate a gringo. I reckon they'll hev a lovely trip."

"But they'll get back with the money, eh?" queried the boss.

"If Pesita don't get 'em," replied Grayson.

CHAPTER X
Billy Cracks a Safe

Billy Byrne, captain, rode into Cuivaca from the south. He had made a wide detour in order to accomplish this; but under the circumstances he had thought it wise to do so. In his pocket was a safe conduct from one of Villa's generals farther south—a safe conduct from the body of one of his recent victims. It would explain Billy's presence in Cuivaca since it had been intended to carry its rightful possessor to Juarez and across the border into the United States.

He found the military establishment at Cuivaca small and ill commanded. There were soldiers upon the streets; but the only regularly detailed guard was stationed in front of the bank. No one questioned Billy. He did not have to show his safe conduct.

"This looks easy," thought Billy. "A regular skinch."

He first attended to his horse, turning him into a public corral, and then sauntered up the street to the bank, which he entered, still unquestioned. Inside he changed a bill of large denomination which Pesita had given him for the purpose of an excuse to examine the lay of the bank from the inside. Billy took a long time to count the change. All the time his eyes wandered about the interior while he made mental notes of such salient features as might prove of moment to him later. The money counted Billy slowly rolled a cigaret.

He saw that the bank was roughly divided into two sections by a wire and wood partition. On one side were the customers, on the other the clerks and a teller. The latter sat behind a small wicket through which he received deposits and cashed checks. Back of him, against the wall, stood a large safe of American manufacture. Billy had had business before with similar safes. A doorway in the rear wall led into the yard behind the building. It was closed by a heavy door covered with sheet iron and fastened by several bolts and a thick, strong bar. There were no windows in the rear wall. From that side the bank appeared almost impregnable to silent assault.

Inside everything was primitive and Billy found himself wondering how a week passed without seeing a bank robbery in the town. Possibly the strong rear defenses and the armed guard in front accounted for it.

Satisfied with what he had learned he passed out onto the sidewalk and crossed the street to a saloon. Some soldiers and citizens were drinking at little tables in front of the bar. A couple of card games were in progress, and through the open rear doorway Billy saw a little gathering encircling a cock fight.

In none of these things was Billy interested. What he had wished in entering the saloon was merely an excuse to place himself upon the opposite side of the street from the bank that he might inspect from the outside without arousing suspicion.

Having purchased and drank a bottle of poor beer, the temperature of which had probably never been below eighty since it left the bottling department of the Texas brewery which inflicted it upon the ignorant, he sauntered to the front window and looked out.

There he saw that the bank building was a two-story affair, the entrance to the second story being at the left side of the first floor, opening directly onto the sidewalk in full view of the sentry who paced to and fro before the structure.

Billy wondered what the second floor was utilized for. He saw soiled hangings at the windows which aroused a hope and a sudden inspiration. There was a sign above the entrance to the second floor; but Billy's knowledge of the language had not progressed sufficiently to permit him to translate it, although he had his suspicions as to its meaning. He would learn if his guess was correct.

Returning to the bar he ordered another bottle of beer, and as he drank it he practiced upon the bartender some of his recently acquired Spanish and learned, though not without considerable difficulty, that he might find lodgings for the night upon the second floor of the bank building.

TODAY—Noble Order of Crusaders in England similar to Ku Klux Klan in America, writes David M. Church, London.

TOMORROW—Frederic K. Abbott writes miscellaneous news notes of Paris.

DAVID M. CHURCH
For International News Service

LONDON, Jan. 23.—Has the Ku Klux Klan, famous mystic order of the United States, a "cousin" in England?

If tales being told in London about the Most Noble Order of Crusaders are true the answer would seem to be in the affirmative.

The English have been inclined to poke fun at the situation in the United States that has arisen out of the activities there of the Ku Klux Klan. Newspapers have given considerable space to chronicling the doings of the Klan and there has been much editorial comment with regard to what Britons have been pleased to regard as this "crude outcropping of American life."

Now, it would seem, England has fathered a twin to the Ku Klux. Whether the activiies of the Crusaders will follow the pathways blazed in America by the Klan remains to be seen, but the fact is that the order has been founded along lines strikingly resembling the outstanding features of the American organization.

The Supreme Grand Lodge of the Crusaders is in London and it meets behind closed doors in a big West End hall. It is reported to have a large membership already and to be recruiting rapidly from all classes of English life. A conclave of Crusaders in every ward in each town and in every large village in England is the ultimate hope of the order's organizers. It is announced that the Crusaders desire their order to be composed of "real leaders of public opinion, chosen without reference to politics or social standing."

The ritual of the Crusaders is weird, mystical and elaborate. On ceremonial occasions the members wear picturesque robes. The habiliments of the grand officers are crimson, the robes being adorned with a large cross. Other members wear a surcoat, a tabard and a belt.

The initiation ceremony is declared to be most impressive, and no effort is evaded to impress the candidate with the solemnity of the obligations he undertakes in allying himself with the Crusaders. Members are understood to be required to take the following oath:

"Our sword shall ever be used to the glory of God, the defense of the right and the maintenance of equity and justice."

As yet there have been no outward manifestations of the activities of the Crusaders and even the fact of its existence is not widely known. The fact that it has been able, within a short time, to build up a formidable membership, however, has caused a few chills of foreboding to wrack the spines of those Britishers who would not like to see a Ku Klux Klan functioning actively in England.

Rent courts are "old stuff" to New York, Chicago and other American cities, but they are just coming into existence in England. The first one has been set up in Blackheath and is organized to settle grievances between tenant and landlord on a friendly basis. The court consists of three "benchers," or arbitrators, one representing the tenants, one the landlords and the third a neutral. Decisions are taken by ballot and parties to the dispute are asked, although it is not mandatory, to accept the decisions without question. Of the cases decided so far every one has been accepted without appeal by the litigants.

Some time during January a committee appointed by the British government will begin an investigation of the distribution and prices of agricultural, horticultural and dairy produce. The object of the commission is to bring about greater equity between the prices received by the producer for his produce and the price the consumer pays for it. The findings of the commission are expected to be made the basis for agricultural reform legislation by the government.

The problem of unemployment in England, although still very acute, is lessening. During the month of December, according to official reports, the number of unemployed decreased by more than 400,000. Revival of industrial activity in the iron and steel trade and a boom in the South Wales coal industry are the factors chiefly responsible. Of the 1,389,000 remaining unemployed in England 250,000 are women, according to official figures.

David Lloyd George, now a private in Parliamentary ranks, instead of the commander-in-chief, did not squander much money in achieving his seat in the House of Commons. A report of the former Prime Minister's expenses in the last election shows that he paid out slightly more than $400.

Unless a seat in the House of Commons is found for him within a short time, it is expected that Sir Arthur Boscawen, Minister of Health in Premier Bonar Law's Cabinet, will resign. Sir Arthur, after accepting his ministership, failed to win a seat in Parliament during the last election. Consequently the Health Department is represented in the House when Parliament is in session by an under-secretary. Although Premier Law is endeavoring to find a seat for Boscawen, members holding seats do not appear to be willing to retire to make a place for the Cabinet Minister and the prospect is not rosy.

DUBILIER CONDENSERS

The Dubilier universal condenser is made of the finest clear India mica. The capacity is absoluteiy constant, the elements being maintained under great and constant pressure by two special spring clamps which slide on the pressure plates. It may be used in radio and audio frequency circuits for receiving purposes, self-rectifying circuits, direct current transmitters and other vacuum tube transmitters up to 100 watts; for grid condensers, for plate "by-pass" condensers and for antenna series condensers, &c. It is made in capacities varying from 0.0005 mfd. to 0.01 mfd. The voltage is rated at 1,000 and will carry one ampere effectively.

RADIO DEVELOPMENT
By LIEUT JOHN R. IRWIN
U. S. AIR SERVICE (RESERVE)

INDUCTIVELY COUPLED TRANSMITTERS.

The high voltage from the secondary circuit of the transformer is then delivered to the condenser, the construction of which has been described in a previous article. This energy is then stored in the condenser until a point is reached when the condenser can hold no more, and the electro-static charge thus accumulated is discharged across the spark gap, creating an oscillating circuit in the circuit we have alluded to as number three in a previous article. This circuit is generally termed the closed oscillatory circuit. These oscillations are of radio frequency. Radio frequencies are those above the range of audibility and are generally considered frequencies above 10,000 cycles a second.

We have explained in the previous explanatory article on radio that this radio or wave frequency depends upon the characteristics of the sending circuit. In this case the frequency of the oscillations in the closed oscillatory circuit would depend upon the amount of capacity and inductance; in other words, it would depend upon the size of the inductance coil and the capacity of the condenser, and may be anywhere from 1,000,000 to 2,000,000 a second. It is customary to construct apparatus wherein it is possible to vary the inductance and capacity. This can be done by varying either or both, but in modern practice it is usual to use a fixed condenser and make the inductance variable, thus making a much more convenient method of changing wave lengths. The inductance will depend upon the number of turns of the wire and the diameter of the turns, the capacity of the condenser depending upon the number and size of the plates or jars used.

Uncle Wiggily Bedtime Stories
— BY HOWARD R. GARIS —

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE CLOTHES PINS

Uncle Wiggily hopped out to the kitchen of his hollow stump bungalow, where Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy, his muskrat lady housekeeper, was giving the breakfast dishes their morning bath.

"Hello, Nurse Jane, hello!" cried the bunny rabbit gentleman in a jolly manner as he twinkled his pink nose. "Is there anything broken this morning?"

"Anything broken? What do you mean?" asked Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy. "Do you mean have I broken any dishes? If so—no."

"I didn't mean that!" laughed Uncle Wiggily. "I mean have you broken any more ironing boards so I'll have to hop off and get you a new one as I did yesterday?"

"Oh, no, thank you," laughed Nurse Jane. "Everything is all right so far."

"Then I am going adventuring!" sang Uncle Wiggily, for he was feeling very gay.

"I hope you have a good one," said Nurse Jane.

Off hopped Uncle Wiggily, over the fields and through the woods. He had not gone very far before, all of a sudden, he heard a voice calling:

"Oh, Uncle Wiggily! Come here: Come here, please!"

"My goodness me sakes alive

"Oh, I want to make one!" barked Peetie.

and some popcorn peanuts!" thought the bunny rabbit gentleman. "I hope that isn't the Blue Nosed Baboon or the Skillery Scallery Alligator."

Uncle Wiggily looked all around but he only saw Jackie and Peetie Bow Wow, the puppy dog boys, waving their paws to him from a window of their kennel house not far away.

"What is it, Jackie and Peetie?" asked the bunny.

"Could you please come in and play with us as you played with the piggy boys yesterday?" barked Jackie.

"Have you the sniffle-snuffles, so you have to stay home from school?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

"No, but there isn't any school today on account of teacher being ill," whined Peetie. "So we're staying home, but we aren't having any fun, and we can't go out 'cause mother has gone to the store and she wants us to wait here to answer the door and the telephone."

"All right, I'll come in and play with you," said kind Uncle Wiggily. And when he was in the doggies' house the first thing he saw was a basket of new clothespins that Mrs. Bow Wow had bought from a peddler that morning.

"We'll have some clothes pin fun," said Uncle Wiggily.

"Aw, you can't have any fun with clothespins," objected Jackie.

"No," agreed his brother, let's play football."

"Not in the house — your mother wouldn't like it," laughed Uncle Wiggily. "Wait and I'll show you how to have fun with clothespins."

The bunny rabbit took a clothespin and a paper napkin. He put the paper napkin in the slot of the clothespin, with a wide part of the paper sticking out on either side.

"Why, it looks just like a butterfly!" barked Peetie.

"That's what I'm going to make of it," said Uncle Wiggily. With some colors from the doggies' paint box the bunny made eyes on the head of the clothespin, and he painted red spots on the paper wings, so the butterfly looked more natural.

"Oh, I want to make one!" barked Peetie. "So do I!" cried Jackie. And soon the doggie boys were making butterflies out of clothespins and paper napkins. Then, when they tired of that Uncle Wiggily showed them how to build a little log house by piling the clothespins up in a hollow square.

Then, all of a sudden, when they were having lots of fun, the door suddenly burst open and in came the Blue Nosed Baboon.

"I want ears!" howled the Baboon, running across the floor. But Uncle Wiggily suddenly put some of the round, slippery clothespins in the way of the Baboon. The blue-nosed chap stepped on the pins, his paws rolled out from under him and down he fell, bumping his bright blue nose.

"Oh, trolley cars!" howled the Baboon, and away he ran out of the house, not nibbling Uncle Wiggily's ears nor those of the doggie boys.

"Clothespins are very useful," said the bunny gentleman as he hopped back to his bungalow. "They keep clothes from blowing away and they keep Blue Nosed Baboons from nibbling ears." And if the egg-beater doesn't try to pick Fourth of July presents off the hat tree for Christmas I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and the blueing.

Nolan's Widow in Lead In Race for Congress

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 23. — Mrs. Mae E. Nolan, according to political observers, appeared to lead the field of seven candidates for election to congress from the Fifth California district, comprising about half of San Francisco, as the 102,000 registered voters in the district went to the polls today to decide the successor to the late Congressman John I. Nolan. The six other candidates are men. Friends of her late husband have been vigorously supporting Mrs. Nolan who, if elected, will carry out the labor policies of her husband, including advocacy of liberalization of the Volstead act to permit beer and light wines.

WOMEN GIVE OUT

Housework is hard enough when healthy. Every woman who is having backache, blue and nervous spells, dizzy headaches and kidney or bladder troubles, should be glad to heed this grateful woman's experience.

Mrs. E. J. Levengood, 812 W. 2nd St., Pomona, Cal., gave the following statement April 30, 1913: "I have never had need to use a kidney remedy since I was cured by Doan's Kidney Pills when living in Santa Ana. Before this I was much distressed at times with headaches and cold chills ran up and down my back. The doctor said I had kidney and bladder trouble and also lumbago. Doan's Kidney Pills removed these symptoms which had so annoyed me and I am indeed grateful for the permanent cure."

On October 3, 1919, Mrs. Levengood said: "My kidneys have not troubled me since Doan's Kidney Pills cured me. I am always glad to recommend Doan's."

'Women of History' Chosen As Opening Attraction by Club Members

The Tuesday Afternoon club's new home at Central avenue and Lexington drive will be ready for occupancy March 13, for it is announced that on that date the annual "Husbands' Night" affair will take place in the new building, with members of the Drama and Music sections entertaining with a clever play, "Women of History," by Mary Wollcott Green, A. B.

Mrs. R. E. Chase, curator of the drama section, will direct the presentation of the play, and she will be assisted by Mrs. Charles A. Parker of the music section, who is arranging the musical numbers to be given during the production.

In her sketch, "The Women of History," Mary Wollcott Green presents womanhood of the ages in a clever and entertaining manner. An enormous history book is prominent in the stage setting for the play and through this book the women of history enter upon the stage. Clever dialogues add greatly to the action of the play.

Findlay; Spirit of Modern America, Mrs. Max Green; Judith, Mrs. Lee Childers; Xantippe, Mrs. Colin Cable; Queen Isabella, Mrs. Malvern Barker; Cornelia, a Roman matron, Mrs. Charles H. Sherman; Jingu, the Korean heroine, Mrs. Albert Pearce; Pocahontas, Mrs. Harry Lorkwood; Jeanne d'Arc, Mrs. Warren Roberts; Florence Nightingale, Mrs. Ray Galvin; Priscilla, Mrs. A. M. Draper.

During the play a minuet will be danced by four of the club women in Colonial costumes.

BIBLE GUIDE TO CHRISTIAN LIFE

Mosaic Laws, Together With Christ's Teachings, Link With Heaven

"The Bible is the connecting link between earth and heaven and is our authority so far as history is concerned for Christian living and discipline," asserted Rev. E. E. Barr on Sunday afternoon at the Broadway Methodist church.

"Isaiah, Amos, Moses and others of the prophets were inspired and got their inspiration and calling from God, yea, they spoke as God gave them utterance. Isaiah left the plow handle commissioned of God, and Moses, with all the learning of the Egyptians, left an opening to Pharoah's throne to take a position as a shepherd for some forty years where God could keep him humble. Then God gave him the laws that are finally to be the laws that govern the world, coupled with the ethical teachings of Jesus Christ, inspired by the Holy Spirit.

Getting Knowledge

"The Bible emphasizes the getting of knowledge, the spread of knowledge, purity of life, man's responsibility to man, to beast, to his home, his family, his nation and to the world.

"The Bible warns men of sin and eternity and teaches him of righteousness, truth and holiness of life.

"I will not deceive my people by saying 'you believe the word and that is sufficient' for 'the devil believed and trembled' and he is still the 'devil going about in this world like a roaring lion seeking whom he may devour.' But there is none other name in heaven or earth whereby man can be saved except through Jesus Christ!"

LECTURER COMES FOR WEEK'S STAY

Harry Rimmer to Speak Under Auspices of Glendale Y. M. C. A.

Harry Rimmer, ex-army man, lecturer of note, and holder of the world's record for the marathon race, a run of over twenty-six miles, will speak at the Christian church at 7:30 o'clock each night next week, beginning Monday, January 29, under the auspices of the Glendale Y. M. C. A.

Harry Marple will have charge of the musical programs for these meetings, and a number of special stunts are being arranged. One of them will be a young folks' chorus, made up of singers from the various churches.

As Mr. Rimmer enjoys the reputation of being a very popular speaker and has addressed the students of nearly every high school in the state, within the last few years, Secretary Rex C. Kelley of the Y. has received requests from Alhambra, Pasadena and Hollywood clubs for invitations to come and hear these talks. The requests have all been granted and an invitation has been extended to all other clubs and organizations interested.

In fact, so popular is Mr. Rimmer that a number of Glendale young folk couldn't wait till next week but went to Highland Park last night, where this speaker delivered a talk in the Presbyterian church.

Many will remember that Harry Rimmer was in Glendale for a day, last year, just two weeks after Thanksgiving, when he spoke at the High school before an enthusiastic audience.

PURPLE MANIA HINTED IN WILL

L. A. Woman Wanted to Be Buried in Lavender, Orchid Clothes

By WILLIAM G. CAYCE
For International News Service

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 23.—What is declared to be one of the strangest wills ever filed for probate in southern California has been brought to light in Los Angeles. The will is that of the late Elena Stanislaus J. Wolfskill Hurlburt. Its terms indicated that the testatrix was fascinated by purple and lavender colors.

Mrs. Hurlburt's will which was for less than $10,000, gave minute details as to how she wanted to be buried and made the unique request that various personal effects of purple and lavender be interred with her or burned in a heap.

"If whoever this concerns does not do it they will regret it!" was one passage in the document.

Later it was learned that the requests of the will were not carried out because of the fact that she was buried before the contents of the will were known.

Will Is Read

That part of the will pertaining to the burial of the decedent read as follows:

"I wish to be buried in my dark-purple plaid skirt, my wistaria waist with the sailor collar and my purple jersey sport coat. I wish to have all my artificial bouquets, violets, orchids and all or any one of them that are purple or lavender or orchid buried with me. I wish that all my personal clothes—dress skirts, all of them, waists, ribbons, handkerchiefs, kimonos, stockings, slippers and my old red silk kimono and all my writing papers, envelopes and correspondence cards, scarfs, bags, purses, anything of mine that is purple or lavender or orchid, or any of those shades, be burned—burned in a pile. If whoever this concerns does not do it they will regret it!

"When I am laid away I wish you to put me away wearing my purple amethyst ring, pin, chain and amethyst pendant and other amethyst pin that are in my blanket I use for my pillow. I wish you to inter with me a purple silk bag with contents unopened, also an envelope like those from dry goods stores that is marked private—I wish these to be muried with me—and for no one to open them. These are my last wishes."

Describe Stolen Bag To Los Angeles Police

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Ackerson, of 715 East Wilson avenue, whose suit case was stolen from their car while en route to Riverside last Friday night, stopped in police headquarters at Los Angeles yesterday on their return to describe the contents of the bag.

The Ackersons, with their baby daughter, Ruby Esther, dined at a restaurant on First street, near Los Angeles street, leaving the suit case in the car. When they came out, the car was still there but the suit case was not.

As they were going to Riverside to be present at the birthday party of Mrs. Ackerson's mother, Mrs. Higgins, they were forced to continue their journey, but the lack of clothes contained in the bag proved a great handicap.

SANITARY LEAGUE MOVEMENT GROWS

Pacific Coast States Follow California's Lead for Better Plumbing

Given impetus by the success that has marked the campaign of the Sanitary Development League of Southern California to educate the public to the necessity of better sanitation and the use of more modern plumbing materials, the movement launched here has extended over the entire Pacific Coast.

This fact was learned yesterday when announcment was made that the plumbing industry of Washington and Oregon has formed similar organizations and that Northern California will do likewise. The new leagues have made inquiry as to the methods being used in Southern California with a view to following them.

The Sanitary Development League of Southern California is at present advertising in thirty-eight cities. The two hundred members have pledged themselves to maintain the highest ideals and practices of the plumbing industry and they are endeavoring to impress upon the public the advantages and economies of better sanitation and materials.

Safeguard Health

"Our campaign was a public necessity because of the rapid building growth in Southern California," said John Hokum, an officer of the league. "It is absolutely essential that the best in plumbing materials be used if we are to safeguard the health of the great number of people who are building their homes here.

"There has been an immediate response to our campaign. The demand for better materials and the adoption of more modern methods of sanitation is general. The public has been quick to see that our messages, printed in the daily newspapers, are designed to protect the public from the menace of cheaply installed and unsanitary plumbing—that we are actuated by a desire to serve the public.

"We are glad to see that the northern states and especially Northern California are following our lead, for this will popularize the movement over the Pacific Coast and result in an improvement of building standards and insure health protection."

Waves of Murder Are Told by German Savant

BERLIN, Jan. 23.—"Murder waves from time to time, and in regular intervals, threaten the civilized world," writes Leo Heller, a German expert on criminal psychosis, in a Berlin paper.

"Sometimes a quarter year may elapse without any capital crime being committed, when suddenly, as if something breaks down a psychological barrier in the minds of criminals, the hounds of brutality are let loose on mankind in search of victims. A murder occurs somewhere, quite incidentally, it seems. But it is the signal for sporadic outbreaks all over the country, just as if the primary outrage acts as an impulse of suggestive power on other criminals who long ago had planned an assault. Then the wave comes irresistibly rolling along to smash the walls of civilization and keep the detective busy preventing its doing too much damage.

"Experience taught German authorities and experts to watch these waves very closely, and many a crime could be prevented by this anticipating watchfulness.

"It has been ascertained that murders in Berlin could be grouped in some five or six 'waves,' no serious outrages being committed during the intervals."

"This is not only the case with civil murder but mainly with political assaults and latest events powerfully back up the theory of 'murder waves.'"

CHANGE TIME OF DELPHIAN LUNCH

Meeting at Public Library Thursday Morning Has Been Moved Ahead

The Alpha or Glendale chapter of the Delphians will hold their monthly meeting at the public library on Thursday morning, January 25, at 9:45 instead of 10 o'clock, as a large number of members have made reservations for the mid-year "Get-Acquainted" luncheon for all Delphians of Southern California.

The morning meeting will be presided over by Mrs. E. D. Yard, president of the Glendale chapter. The program will be in charge of Mrs. V. Rapp, leader of group three, and will have to do with the study of Greek.

The luncheon will be served at the New Elite, 641 South Flower street, Los Angeles, at 12:30 o'clock.

As January 25 is also "Assembly Day" at the Ebell clubhouse, all Glendale Delphians are urged to attend the program there, which starts at 2:15 o'clock.

10-Hour Day Favored By Female Students

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—A ten-hour day for the college girl and one day's rest in seven is recommended by the Board of Student Presidents at Barnard College in a resolution presented to the undergraduate body, which proposes a new point system to regulate extra-curricular activity. By this plan a student's entire college activity would be limited "to such an amount as she may reasonably be expected to accomplish in a ten-hour day, or a sixty-hour week."

Eight hours for sleep, two hours for exercise and four hours for meals, duties at home, and so on, are essential, the board believes, leaving ten hours in the twenty-four for college activities. Under the new method the extra-curricular activities would be regulated by a point system, in which each point would stand for three hours of work, as it does in the academic system.

The board suggests that exceptions be made in the case of seniors, by special permission from the faculty committees on instruction and student affairs.

The Bulletin, Barnard's weekly newspaper, concludes an editorial on the scheme as follows:

'We would not yet pass judgment on the scheme, but rather would we launch it with the suggestion that it deserves earnest, heated and purposeful consideration at the hands of the college."

'Marys' Head List of Syracuse 'Wreckers'

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Jan. 23.—Oh, what a vamp is Mary

Mary may be a grand old name, but she's Syracuse's home wrecker.

She holds down the third corner of the local divorce case triangle.

So affirm Syracuse's leading divorce lawyers and, with office files loaded with corespondents' names, they ought to know.

In a vast majority of cases the corespondent's first name is Mary. Lillian, Rose and Ethel are in the runnersup.

Some dictionaries say Mary means "beloved of God"—others that it means bitter.

One of the world's most ancient names, found in some form the world over, it has come to stand for Motherhood. But many notorious Marys have lived—Bloody Mary, of England, for one.

Mary popularity stands for the old-fashioned girl. But then, men fall for the innocent-appearing, blue-eyed miss every time. And quaint old-fashioned Marys though they be, these unsophisticated misses do bob up in the divorce courts.

London Butler Leaves Estate Worth $60,000

LONDON, Jan. 23.—John D. Rockefeller may cling to his laurels as the world's richest man, but John Hunter Coutts will go down to posterity as the world's richest butler.

Coutts, during a long career of "butling," twenty years of which were passed in the service of Lord Ribblesdale, amassed a fortune of thirteen thousand pounds, or about $60,000, at present rates of exchange. His will, recently probated, showed he was the possessor of mortgages valued at about $15,000, war bonds worth $40,000, with cash and other assets totalling about $5,000.

Some less fortunate British butlers are wondering how John Hunter "got that way." They point out that, to have amassed such a fortune through saving, Coutts would have had to lay by an average of about $60 per week for twenty years. The conviction lurks in the minds of Coutts contemporaries that he must have 'had a knack' of multiplying his savings by investment.
